

ABSTRACT

A method for reducing sunburn cells in human skin includes applying a topical preparation comprising an amount of an agent effective to reduce the formation of sunburn cells in human skin, and exposing the skin to ultraviolet radiation. The agent includes idebenone or a derivative of idebenone.